BEFORE & AFTERS

This family has a very busy mom. She works from both in and outside the home and she teaches home school. She and her husband have their own children in addition to foster parenting. Her home office is a combination of all her work and home responsibilities. After purging all the unnecessary items, we were able to make the space more efficient, stream-lined, and zone-oriented. Now, both parents can find anything they need because everything has a specific home.

This client runs a business out of her home for herself and her husband. She felt she couldn't get anywhere with keeping the clutter in their home office under control. They had plenty of space but not enough tools to keep it organized. With the help of Organize My Clutter, she is thrilled that her desktop now remains clean and their office closet actually "makes sense." Her discovery in the process was "now that everything has a home, I actually WANT to put things away."

This client also runs a business out of her home. Her issue is paper, reference catalogs, and information control, along with a smaller office with limited space for storage. To help, we installed shelving above the desk and used existing items around the house for storage and organizing solutions. We also revamped the filing system inside the drawers, and set up a better “incoming paper” control system on the work surface.
